pair is a great app for people to make meaningful relationships that more than one night stands. Pair isn't necessarily for romantic relationships, but also to meet people with shared interests etc. Its emphasis is on "meaningful relationships" that last

Connecting Lonely People

Quang Tran has been working at an elementary school for 3 years. Everyday after work, he would be tired and not make an effort to meet new people. He is very sad and wishes he had a lover.

Back in the day, Quang Tran would focus on his studies and he would not have time to make friends.

Quang received an email one day to participate in an early access app. He was very sceptical of it because the email targeted him specifically. The subject of the email was in bold: "Connecting Lonely People"

The email included a download link to the app Pear, a dating app.

Quang was amazed by the app. Quang believed that the app would help him find his soulmate and even find friends. Quang also wanted to work on his social skills.

Quang was matched with the love of his life. Everyday from work, Quang would be excited to hang out with his match. Quang improved his social skills and stopped becoming a loner.

Not before long, Quang and his lover got married. Quang was no longer sad, depressed, and lonely, because of the app.

Bing Bao

By: Cody Tang

Bing Bao is a real street hustler and works very hard. Although he is doing well off, he is not happy, as he works 24/7 and everyone just sees him as a vendor instead of his actual self

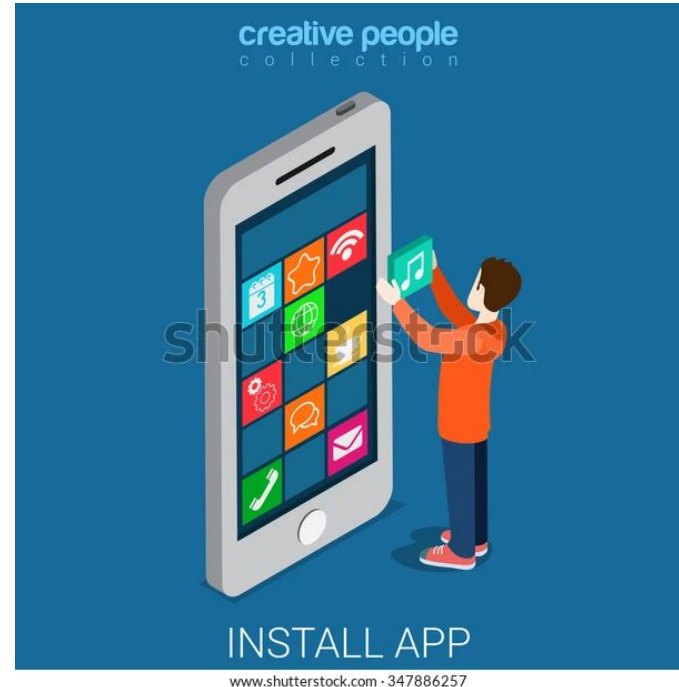

Because Bing Bao works on the street, he gets inside information on new things. One day, he decides to make a change about this life after hearing about an upcoming app that can impact his life very drastically.

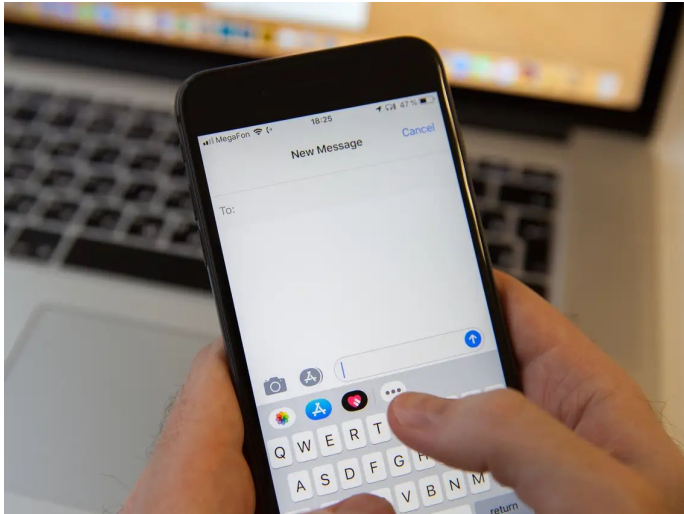

As Bing Bao starts to have more hope, reality suddenly hits him, and he has lots of business in his market. He all of the sudden has to work even harder and has less and less free time. However, a positive is that the upcoming app released later that night, which he was looking very forward to.

Bing Bao installs the app, and is very excited about the app (Pair) in which can connect lonely people that have had a struggle with interaction in the past/present. He creates a profile, looks at other profiles that he may have an interest in and lets the rest happen over night

To surprise, Bing Bao wakes up to many notifications that show other people have interest in his profile. These are all potentially matches and relationships that Bing Bao can build off of. Bing Bao goes to work very happy, and throughout the day is messaging one person in particular and they are really hitting it off.

After very good conversations, Bing Bao is now very happy as he is now balancing work, business, and his social life. Bing Bao has started talking to this person and they have been doing things together. Bing Bao's story is just one of many that the Pair app has helped create.

Connecting Lonely People

Connecting Lonely People: Richard Dawson

By: Josh Fernandez

Recently, Richard has been focused on work and has basically no social life. Even though he loves his job and lives a well off life, he wants to make a change.

On his lunch break during work, he sees an ad on Facebook about a new popular app called “Pair” which he thinks is stupid but downloads it anyway because why not. Later on he figures out this app is perfect for his situation. His day just got a whole lot better.

A week later, Richard continues to use the app to find friends and maybe even a special partner. You could say he was addicted to the app and even recommended it to all his past friends. His screen time on his phone has doubled and “Pair” is now the most used app on his phone.

One day after waking up for work, he sees his phone has 10+ notification and he opens the app immediately. He sees a beautiful girl he's matched with and they really hit off. Richard thinks this might be the one and to his luck, she lives nearby and they even plan to have a date next week.

On their date, Richard really enjoyed her company and even thinks he fell in love with her. Richard likes the vibe and even thinks she feels the same way. He makes plans to propose and marry her. Richard thinks back and is very thankful for the “Pear” app.

A year later, Richard and his wife Teresa are finally married and live together with their two children.

Richard is thankful for the Pear app and buys the whole app and organization because of how much he loved it.

He recommends “Pear” to anyone who is lonely
